International Classification of Diseases Eighth Revision

Adapted for use in the United States by U.S. Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare, Public Health Service, National Center for Health Statistics. Originally adapted for the World Wide Web by the Comprehensive Epidemiologic Data Resource Project, Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

Enhanced by Devon Indig and Tim Churches, Epidemiology and Surveillance Branch, Public Health Division, NSW Health Department.

Readers who are unfamiliar with the International Classification of Diseases should note that the Eighth Revision should only be used with historical data coded using ICD-8 and that there are in many cases substantial differences in the code used to represent a particular disease, condition or procedure between one revision of the ICD codes and the next. Always check that the code list to which you are referring is appropriate for the coding system used in the data which you are analysing.

Although all reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this document is free from errors, you use it at your own risk and wherever possible, we urge you to check its accuracy against the official WHO publication. If you notice any errors, please contact Tim Churches (tchur@doh.health.nsw.gov.au).
