

Equality Law, 15 credits, Autumn term 2022, JU721A and JU721B

Equality Law is given as an elective course within the framework of the exchange programmes at the Department of Law, Stockholm University. Swedish law students admitted by the department are also given access to the course. The course contains four blocks. The first block focuses on the overarching legal systems existing on the Swedish, EU and international levels addressing issues of discrimination. The second block addresses different grounds of discrimination. The third block addresses legal theoretical approaches to equality issues, including, for example, feminist legal theory, critical race theory, justice and intersectionality. The fourth block covers integrated topics combining existing legal structures and theoretical approaches, covering issues such as migration law, access to justice and wage discrimination. Instruction is given in the form of seminars.

Examination is conducted through active participation in the mandatory seminars of the course (including the seminar introduction), the writing and presentation of an essay and the review of another student's essay.

The questions in the course evaluation (attached with answers) posed were:

Course Evaluation Equality Law 2022

13. The course has provided deeper insights into the legal system and its role in society.
14. The course has conveyed knowledge as to legal argumentation and methods for legal interpretation
15. The course information, schedule and information as to materials for the course were easily accessible
16. The course was administered in a proficient manner.
17. It was easy to know what was expected of the students in the course.
18. The amount of work required for the course was too heavy.
19. Sufficient learning time was given for what was needed in the course.
20. The only thing necessary to succeed in the course was a good memory.
21. The teachers made the content of the course interesting.
22. The teachers motivated the students to do their best.
23. The course has developed my ability to work in groups.
24. Taking the course has given me more confidence to address new and unknown problems.
25. The teachers were professional when giving feedback.
26. Did the course objectives give a good depiction of the course you recently finished.

27. Did the course literature enable reaching the course objectives?
28. Did you have the possibility to participate in the course on terms equal with other students (for example, from an equal treatment perspective)?
29. Did this survey cover all relevant topics, if not, what is missing?

14 of 15 were satisfied with the course on a level of 4 or 5 out of 5. On the whole it appears that the students were positive to the course. The major criticism was that the readings needed to be better tailored as with the questions. Paul and Laura will review both the readings and the questions for the next class as to relevancy.

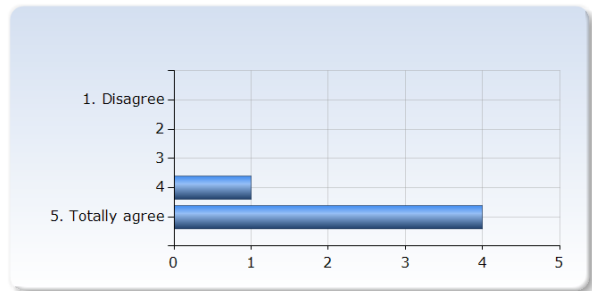

15 out of 30 students answered the evaluation.

6. What was the best about the course?

What was the best about the course?

many different subjects and teachers + breakout rooms permitted to involve in the course

The Berkley course was really interesting!

Different lecturers as well as approaches to equality and discrimination

The topics we worked on. In general I am very interested in these areas and therefore I read and try to educate myself on those things outside my studies so it was a nice experience to combine that with course-work.

The interesting people we met (Berkeley etc).

The international aspect.

7. What improvements would you suggest?

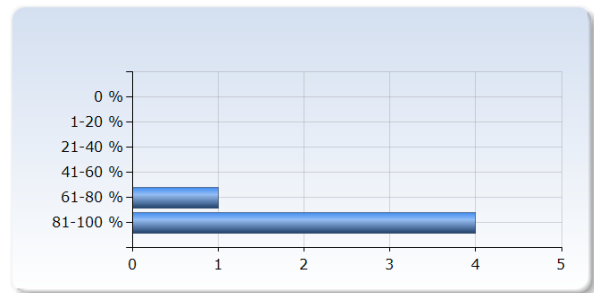

What improvements would you suggest?

Maybe having the method-seminars at the beginning of the course so that the students can use the knowledge from it in the essay or just skip them rather than having them the last weeks of the course!

Sometimes the readings for the classes were a little bit too much
