Same comment as above.
The mock arbitration was a lot of fun and it was great to learn about the arbitration procedure in a practical way.
I now understand the process of arbitration as well as how to draft proper submissions.

During some weeks the lectures were very spread out (on different days), it would have been nice to schedule more lectures in the same day in order to have some days that are purely for studying/reading independently.
Schedule was very cramped towards the end of the course, and some lectures could be removed. Alternatively put more lectures earlier in the course to be able to move on to arbitration sooner.

Crina, Daria and Patrica, actually all the professors, are lovely and most importantly amazing to communicate the material. It was very interesting. I also really liked that the guy from the ICC came to talk with us - I like when the course also focuses on real-life use.

Some lectures felt a bit repetitive, especially during the arbitration segment. However, I learned a lot and it really felt like everything clicked by repeating certain elements.

I also liked the involvement of the students. It was nice that, even though there were reading questions in the materials for each lecture, it was not a thigh review of each question, one after another, but more implemented into the lecture.

All of the lecturers were so knowledgeable and inspiring. They really made the class fun.

The teachers were nice and interesting.

A bit too much at the end.

There were quite a few examinations (essay, mocks, seminars etc) but considering that we were given the proper tools through lectures, seminars etc it didn't feel overwhelming.

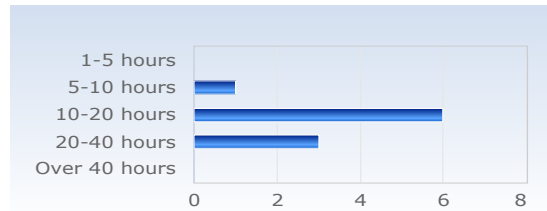

All in all it was appropriate, but as mentioned above the amount of work cramped into the last few weeks was not ideal. Would have preferred a more even workload throughout the course, which could be achieved if the first few weeks were busier in order to move in to arbitration sooner.

Maybe manage the time a bit better for the lectures and time for submissions in the mock arbitration. Our group had one day to submit certain documents which affected the quality. The short time was because of the close deadline to the essay and since time was scheduled over the weekend (three days to submit which was over the weekend..). Would have liked to get a better hold of the relation between different laws in a arbitration agreement.

Maybe start with lectures a week earlier, so we have more time to write the essay without lectures at the same time, especially as the final lectures before the deadline for the essay were very helpful to choose a topic and getting an insight into arbitrators powers and duties. Moreover, as for the people who were respondents, I think the time in between essay deadline and the first mock submission was too little.

Thank you so much for this class. It was amazing!

This has been my favorite course in the entire program at SU! Crina and Patricia - you are teachers and professionals of absolute world class. A new universe of law has opened up to me, and I am now confident I'll be pursuing dispute resolution, which I barely knew about before taking the course. Keep inspiring students with your knowledge and enthusiasm and the world of arbitration will have an even brighter future. Thank you!

See above comments. Other than that, excellent teachers and fun assignments!
